

Protection against antibiotic-resistant pathogens

Dear patients

In order to protect your health and ensure a safe hospital environment, we are committed to early detection of colonization by antibiotic-resistant pathogens. If necessary, we carry out targeted swabs for such pathogens and initiate appropriate isolation measures. These measures are important to prevent infections and to protect you and other patients as much as possible.

Thank you for your understanding and support.

